

LOVE TO LAYER!

With winter around the corner the big question is, how do we dress in this climate while still looking our best? Layers, of course! The West Rand's Riana Meyer of Chuta Romanya Image Consultants explains.

So what's important? Spend something a couple of minutes a day or 20 mins a day to make a plan for your wardrobe. Start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there.

For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there.

For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there.

For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there.

For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there. For example, you should start with the basics and go from there.

